PUBLIC RIGHT-OF-WAY VACATIONS
APPLICATION AND SUBMITTAL REQUIREMENTS

Streets and alleys are publicly owned rights-of-way and, as such, must be accessible to all members of the public street or alley in order to restrict access to residents. Cities are permitted to abandon (vacate) a street or alley if the property in question is unnecessary for present or future right-of-way purposes.

Once a street or alley has been vacated, use and ownership of the land reverts to the abutting landowners and the land becomes private property. The City no longer has either the obligation or the right to participate in the maintenance of the property.

Maintenance and lighting of the vacated right-of-way becomes a private property obligation not subject (except in emergencies) to City intervention. The private property owner assumes all maintenance obligations for the vacated right-of-way. However, use of the property may be limited by any easements which the public utility companies required as a precondition of vacation. These easements give the utility companies the permanent right to access the property, and often prevent the property owner from building on the vacated right-of-way.

In addition to public easements (utilities, sewer, fire lanes, etc.), private easements allowing access from one property to another may also be required. These easements guarantee that all property owners are protected and have access to public streets.

The process by which streets/alleys and other public right-of-ways are vacated is governed by Part 3 of the California Street and Highway Code. This section mandates the hearing and public notice requirements for the vacation of a public right-of-way. It also describes various Court decisions which have upheld a City’s right to vacate a street or alley only when it is unnecessary for present or future use as a street and only when required in order to promote public health and welfare.

Every request to abandon a street/alley or other public right-of-way is unique and must be evaluated on a case-by-case basis. Until the City has obtained input from all applicable agencies and utilities, it cannot know whether a street or alley meets the test mandated by State law.

Staff can discuss and give a primary, tentative evaluation of a proposed street or alley vacation “over the counter”. However, it cannot initiate actual processing until a formal application has been submitted.

In order to submit an application, all property owners abutting the proposed vacation must complete the application package. It should be noted that complex street or alley vacations, such as those with multiple property owners, may require the participation of an attorney to represent the applicants. Additionally, submittal of an application is no guarantee that the subject street or alley will be vacated. If the City determines that the right-of-way is needed for future circulation or property access, it will be unable to approve the application.
Please note: Applications are taken in by appointment only. Contact planning staff to schedule appointments. Incomplete submittal packets will not be taken in. The following items must be submitted:
